

Adderson's Wear-Easy Shoe....

is a shoe made especially for farm use and that will wear "as easy as an old shoe" right from the start. A shoe in which there is not a peg or nail or thread to touch the bottom of the foot. A shoe that is almost as soft and flexible as a lady's hand turned. A shoe with a pure white oak innersole that is cooling to the bottom of the foot; all other every day shoes are made with cheap acid tanned red leather innersoles that burn, scald and blister the feet so badly in hot weather. A shoe that will give more comfort for general farm use than any shoe that has ever been gotten up.

We keep this shoe in Buckle and Congress & the price is $1.50
Sizes 6 to 13.

TAYLOR'S MACHINE.

Has Flattened Out All Show of Opposition.

The 'Torney Gin' Will Have Himself Nominated This Week to Head the Ticket.

Lexington, July 10.—Republican conventions were held in ten counties of Kentucky Saturday and Attorney General Taylor made practically a clean sweep, carrying Floyd, Lawrence, Carter, Henderson, Knox, Palaski and half the vote of Lewis. Auditor Stone got half of Lewis county's vote and claims the uninstructed delegations from Boyd and Mercer. Judge Pratt carried Caldwell, which gave second instructions for Taylor. Mr. Taylor now claims 1,136½ instructed votes against 258½ for Stone and 136 for Pratt. There are 121 uninstructed votes, while conventions not held or unreported represent forty-two votes. The Taylor men claim 258 more votes than the number necessary to nominate. The convention here Wednesday will be a Taylor ratification meeting and the only contests will be for the other offices on the ticket.

GOOD WOMAN GONE.

Cut Down By Grim Reaper in Early Life.

Mrs. Lula Morris Koon, wife of Mr. Thomas Koon, of Longview, died last Thursday afternoon, after an illness of several weeks. She was at first attacked with some stomach trouble and consumption of the bowels followed, which resulted in her death. She was 25 years old and was a sister of Messrs. Jeff and Stonewall Morris, of this city. She had been a member of Presbyterian church at Pembroke for several years and was a lady held in the highest esteem by a large circle of friends. The remains were interred in the Primmy burying ground, near Elmo, Friday.

KUGLER TO LEAVE.

Will go This Week to Engage in Business in Richmond Va.

Mr. J. H. Kugler and family will leave to-day for Richmond, Va., where Mr. Kugler has arranged to go into business.

He will be at the head of a syndicate operating mercantile houses in Richmond and Norfolk, Va., and Macon, Ga., dealing in novelties and articles sold for ten cents and less. The corporation is backed by ample capital and will do business on a large scale and the store will be up-to-date in every respect. Mr. Kugler carries within him the good wishes of many people in Hopkinsville, who have recognized in him a progressive and wide-awake business man. He is popular with the people and has the faculty of making friends wherever he goes. We predict for him a successful career in the Virginia metropolis.

BRYAN FOR GOEBEL.

Expressed the Hope That Kentucky Would go Democratic by 50,000 This Fall.

Lexington, Ky., July 6.—The Hon. William Jennings Bryan passed through this city this afternoon en route to Columbus, Ohio, where he will be entertained at a banquet given in his honor. Friday evening. He was met by prominent Democrats, who extended him a cordial welcome. He expressed a desire to see Kentucky go Democratic by a majority of 50,000 this fall. When asked about the convention of 1900, he said it would undoubtedly reaffirm the Chicago platform and add planks against trusts and imperialism.

WOE IN TEXAS.

Number of Destitute People Estimated at 45,000.

The Floods Are The Most Destructive Ever Known In The State.

Austin, Tex., July 10.—Gov. Sayers stated to an Associated Press correspondent that, judging from all the reports he had received officially from the flooded district, there had been great loss of property, both personal and corporate; that hundreds of people had been bereft of their homes and belongings, and that at present there were in the neighborhood of 45,000 people, the majority of them being negroes, who were dependent entirely upon public charity for sustenance. The suffering of water-bound refugees has been very great.

The governor figures the reports to show that the loss of life has been comparatively small, not exceeding fifty persons. The heaviest farming losses will fall upon the owners of the big plantations in the bottom, who have lost all their crops and much of their physical property and are not being protected in the distribution of charity which is being expended only among the poor. Up to to-night Gov. Sayers has received $30,000 in money contributions from this State and those charitably disposed in the East.

HOUSE NUMBERS.

The Official List Will Soon Be Ready.

The city council has officially endorsed the street numbers that will appear in the new edition of Meacham's Directory of Hopkinsville. The numbering will be finished this week and duplicate numbers furnished to the city authorities, after which citizens can put up their numbers, where they have not already had them put up. Every dwelling house and business house in the city will be numbered and the numbers to be furnished at cost by the city will not cost more than ten or fifteen cents for three figures.

All citizens are warned not to attempt to number their houses upon information from non-residents acting without authority. The numbers must be officially approved by the city officers, who will be prepared to give the correct numbers in a few days.

NOW HIS OWN UNCLE.

Wedding Mixes Up a Preacher's Relationship to His Family.

Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 5.—Mrs. Hayward, a well-preserved widow of about fifty winters, was married in Mayville to a widower of Vanceburg, named Politt. Mrs. Hayward is a mother-in-law of Rev. Halstead Politt, of the M. E. Church, South, of this place, and her husband is his brother.

It is a good thing that the reverend gentleman possesses the blessing of the entire sanctification else he might lose his religion trying to figure out the complications of the ties which bind him to his family. By this union his mother-in-law becomes his sister-in-law, his wife his niece and his two children his great nieces and nephews. His brother becomes his father-in-law, thereby making him brother-in-law to his brother's children and brother to his wife, and uncle and cousin to his own children. He becomes son-in-law to his brother and uncle to himself.

Paul Kauvar.

One of the strongest attractions to be seen here next season will be the revival of Steele's Mackaye's great masterpiece, "Paul Kauvar," as represented by E. R. Spencer and Isabel Pengra. They will be supported by their own company of players specially selected for this production.

This play was first produced in New York where it had a run of over one hundred consecutive nights and received the unanimous commendation of the press of that city. Its success was later duplicated in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, and all the large cities of the United States and Canada.

In the present production Mr. Spencer will be seen as Paul Kauvar, and having been associated with the play for several seasons under the personal stage direction of the author, he should be aptly fitted to the title role.

Miss Pengra will be seen in the beautiful character of Diane de Beaumont.

The action of this play takes place in Paris at the time of the French Revolution, 1794, and will permit of lavish display in the way of costuming and scenery.

No expense will be spared in the mounting of this production and no doubt it will be all that Mr. Spencer claims for it.

Young Men at The Helm.

The charge that the politics of Kentucky was in the hands of the fossils will no longer lie. All of the nominees for the minor offices but two were born after the first gun in the civil war was fired, and the man who heads the ticket was, during that period, at the age when tin snappers and tissue paper caps are the only outward emblems of a war-like spirit. Truly the young men of old Kentucky are at the throttle.—Times.

Every cloud has a silver lining—so lawyers say.

WORKING THE FARMERS.

The Patent Fence Scheme Repeated In Daviess County on a Tobacco Frame.

Owensboro, Ky., July 5.—Many Daviess county farmers have received circular letters notifying them that they had violated patent rights, by using a wagon frame of certain design for hauling tobacco from the field to barns. Nearly every tobacco raiser in the county has adopted this form of frame, which can be easily constructed at home or by local blacksmiths. If the owner of the patent, who claims to live at Dulaney, Ky., can recover for alleged violations, it is estimated that about 1,000 Daviess county farmers will have to pay a penalty of $2.50 each, while fifty blacksmiths will have to pay $10 each. Other Kentucky tobacco growing sections will be proportionately affected if the claims of the circular are verified.

A TRICK.

Troops Ordered to Manchester on the Strength of a False Statement Made Over the Telephone.

Fraukfort, July 3.—Gov. Bradley was imposed upon by some unknown fakir when he issued orders Saturday afternoon, holding several companies of the state guard in readiness for quick transportation to Manchester in Clay county. The orders were issued after the Governor had received, in Cincinnati, a telephone message purporting to be from a reliable state official, who said serious trouble was threatened and that a large detail of soldiers was necessary to prevent bloodshed. The trick was discovered yesterday and the orders at once revoked.

Caterpillars Stop a Train.

A mail train on the Passumpsic division of the Boston and Maine railroad was stopped by forest caterpillars upon the track a few miles north of St. Johnsbury. The pests had gathered in such numbers that the wheels, passing over them, slipped the rails. It frequently occurs that a large amount of sand is required to get a train over an army of the caterpillars on the march from one forest to the other. They are now entering to cocoon state quite rapidly, and their devastations for this year are nearing an end.—(St. Johnsbury, Vt., telegram to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Goebel's Rise.

Atlanta Constitution: If ever a man has been able to fight his way, not only in politics but through his life, this man Goebel is he. His career is a magnificent illustration of the possibilities of brains, energy and integrity—that combination which insures success in every line of endeavor. From a bare-footed little newsboy to the governorship of his State is a long stride forward, but every inch of this way has been honestly won, and to day in the hour of his triumph Goebel can have the satisfaction of feeling that it is all due to himself, and himself alone.

The July Demorest's is an especially seasonable number. There is more fiction than usual, there are three special fashion articles, besides the regular Paris "Review," and a delightful assortment of short topics of interest are treated in a brisk, sprightly manner.

The cover is a "Stanlaw's Girl," especially designed for Demorest's in that unimitable chic fashion which has already made Mr. Stanlaw famous.

The leading article deals with a subject of widespread interest to men and women throughout the country, especially property owners. It is a vigorous plea for "Village Improvement Societies," and gives an accurate account of some excellent photographs of the work done by the women of the Honesville, Pa., Association. "An Important Philanthropy" is the title of a most comprehensive story of the inception, growth and success of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, by Theodore Dreiser. The subject is well and fully illustrated.

A German government mine surveyor has entered the service of the Sultan in order to conduct coal explorations in Asia Minor.

THE NEW YORK WORLD, THIRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

PRACTICALLY A DAILY AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of THE THIRICE-A-WEEK WORLD to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interest still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines, and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of THE THIRICE-A-WEEK WORLD is improvement. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and the public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

Tom Vinson's Terrapin.

Mr. A. T. Vinson, of Gracely, has a good terrapin story that is entitled to a place in with the many that are among the rounds of the Kentucky press.

About a year ago he found a very large terrapin in his field, and was especially attracted by some peculiar marks upon its back. Upon close examination he found that a couple of 20-penny nails had been driven into it. He pulled the nails out, and sent the poor creature on its way rejoicing. Last week he ran across the same identical terrapin making its way back to the place where it was seen a year ago. The wounds in the flesh had entirely healed, but the holes in the shell were as plain as the day the nails were pulled out. Tim Golliver and Lucian Miller vouch for the truthfulness of the record as related by friend Tom—Caldiz Store.

A hole in the purse, and the cupboard the worse.

Quinine Jim.

A Clarksville telegram conveys the sorrowful intelligence that a close friend who has recently returned from Oak Grove, Christian county, where he visited reports the Hon. James A. McKendzie, United States Minister to Peru, under Mr. Cleveland's last administration, well nigh blind. His friends fear that he is soon to become totally blind. No man's affliction will occasion more genuine sympathy in Kentucky and throughout the country among those who know "Quinine Jim" than this. Personally he was a man of great popularity. —Uniontown Telegram.

Colored Minor Killed.

THE GREAT INDIAN CHIEF

By Hattie E. Briggs

IN ALL the village of High Banks there were no young people who had such good times as Vira, Stephenson and the Wallings, for while Vira was an only child, and had no companions of her age in her own home, Dr. Walling lived so near by that the children of both houses were almost constantly together.

"Brothers are not always such a comfort, Vira," Jessie often said, in a burst of confidence. "Harry is good to me, and all that, but he teases me so that I sometimes just hate him. They think themselves so superior, too, that they happen to be a little older than their sisters."

Certain women in the neighborhood disapproved of the fact that Vira and Jessie spent so much time in the society of Harry Walling, saying it made girls rough to play with boys, but when the fathers of the girls were appealed to, they said:

"Let the youngsters alone. They'll realize the responsibilities of life soon enough; let them have a good time while they can."

While the girls could join Harry in most of his sports, they still had their play-house and dolls, and spent many happy hours every day over their play housekeeping.

"Jessie," asked Vira one day, while sitting under the old snow-apple tree in the Stephenson's back yard, with their family of dolls about them, "if you were not just yourself, who would you like to be?"

"Well, I don't know," answered her companion, thoughtfully. "Sometimes I think I would like to be a great singer, so I could charm the whole world, but I guess I had about as soon be one of the Thomas children as anybody I know."

"Why, Jessie Walling!" cried Vira, shocked at the frankness of her reply. "There are ten in that family, and they are dreadfully poor."

"I know it," complacently responded Jessie, "but what fun they have. They take their tame chicken right into the house, and they never have to keep their room tidy, and nobody ever speaks to them about their table manners or—"

"Hello, girls!" cried a voice from out the apple blossoms, "want to go and live with the Thomas family, do you?" and Harry Walling descended from the old tree.

"It isn't very nice to be listening, Harry Walling," cried Vira, between whom and the boy there was usually a good-natured war.

"I was there first, reading, when you came, Miss Propriety," responded Harry. "Yes, it was an Indian story," in answer to a question from his sister, "and how I wish I might have seen some of those old warriors—Pontiac, or Newaygo, or—"

"Well, I don't like them," stoutly affirmed Vira. "They were wicked and cruel and killed white folks and stole children. If the biggest chief that ever lived should walk into this yard this minute I would order him out as quickly as I could speak."

"And I would help you," asserted Jessie as the two strolled away arm in arm while Harry seated himself to finish his story.

That afternoon while the girls were on the porch, Vira heard a determined knock at the kitchen door. No one else was in the house. She went into the hall and out through the dining-room, Jessie following close behind. She threw open the door, and there stood an object which fairly froze the blood in her veins. Towering far above her, dressed in all the trappings which he took of a prince among red men, stood an Indian chief, looking darkly at the girls.

"Why—why, good afternoon," gasped Vira.

"Do," was the laconic response, and the Indian stalked into the kitchen, seeming to completely fill it by his towering height and broad shoulders.

"Ma home? Pa home?" he inquired, in a guttural tone.

"No, Mr. Indian," spoke up Jessie, bravely. "Uncle Harry is downtown, and if you want to see him you better go right down there."

"If I white snaw 'frad?' he laughed, scornfully. "Me much big chief. Me Newaygo. Me kill tree, four white men. Ugh!" and the Indian laughed loudly, and then glared at the girls so fiercely that they hung onto each other in speechless terror.

"You Injun?" he suddenly asked, looking sharply at Vira, and reaching to feel her long black braids. "Big scalp. Long hair. Face dark like Injun."

"No, I'm not an Indian," returned the girl, feeling that her life depended upon her replies to the chief. "I'm Mr. Harry Stephenson's daughter."

"No, You Injun. Me make you Injun. My squaw learn you make head work and baskets and cook for Injun, ugh!" and again the Indian's awful laugh resounded through the kitchen.

"Ma want eat," he grunted, after a moment's silence, pointing toward the cookstove.

"What do you want to eat?" politely inquired Vira, as Jennie made a dart toward the woodbox, where kindling was ready to build a fire at supper time.

"Coffee. Corn. Poached corn," he answered.

"But I don't know how to make good coffee," said Vira, with a sob.

"If I snaw leave Injun," he responded, with a chuckle.

The unwelcome visitor was dressed in buckskin trousers, a fur flannel shirt and wore numerous chains and embossed belts about his neck. His feet were encased in gayly beaded moccasins, and he carried a large band-let, which he carefully deposited on the floor at his side. Long feathers adorned his hair, which fell below his neck, and his face was painted a hideous red, which helped to add to his ghastly appearance. At his belt were a knife, a tomahawk and a whisky flask, and added to this outfit was a gun, which he laid down by the side of his blanket.

The Indian sat in solemn silence a few moments, watching the girls prepare the corn and coffee.

After eating heartily and drinking three cups of coffee, the redman produced a black, long-stemmed pipe, which he proceeded to fill with great deliberation with a green-looking mixture.

"He smoke pipe of peace," he said. "You smoke, then me take Injun and go. Send squaw after Injun boy," and he handed the pipe to Jessie, who began to cry and say between her sobs: "I can't smoke."

"Pale face plenty 'frad?' he queried. "Oh, don't take Vira and Harry, Mr. Indian," pleaded the girl.

The man paid no attention to Jessie, but holding the pipe toward Vira, said: "Lil Injun smoke?"

"I don't know how to smoke," she cried. "Oh, dear! why don't you pass Harry or somebody come?" and she too, began to cry.

The Indian sprang from his chair, seized his gun, and after giving a hard-swinging back-swing, walked to the kitchen door and fired the gun straight into the air. Then turning to Vira, he said:

"Um 'tend um brave; um smoke pipe now," holding the pipe toward her again.

"Yes, sir," meekly responded Vira between her sobs.

"And I'll try to, too, Mr. Indian," cried Jessie, "if you won't take Vira."

"I DON'T KNOW HOW TO SMOKE."

Just as the girl was about to take the pipe into her trembling hand, a well-known voice called from the dining room:

"Well, sir, haven't you carried your fun about far enough?"

Mr. Stephenson walked into the room, both girls sprang into his arms, while the Indian actually grew pale under his coat of vermilion paint. Vira and Jessie could hardly believe that the brave chief, who had been ordering them about in such a superior manner, was only Harry, dressed in an Indian suit which an old chief had presented to his grandfather many years before. The pretended redskin looked exceedingly cheap at being discovered, and stammered that he expected every minute the girls would know who he was.

"Besides," he continued, "Vira bragged that she would be so brave if she saw an Indian, I thought I would see what kind of stuff she was made of."

"A joke played at the expense of a couple of girls, my boy," said Mr. Stephenson, "never contains any of the elements of fun, and I am heartily ashamed that you should do such a thing. A man who has been well should always defend helpless women and young girls, too."

Jessie and Vira both suffered from the fright they received that afternoon, and as a warning against any more practical jokes, Mr. Walling inflicted a severe punishment upon Harry. For months he had been looking forward to a visit to the Indian reservation, to make his private room at 10 Downing street. In his room red official boxes by the dozen were piled up on dumb-waiters and on the top was a small box of fawn-colored leather, to which he pointed. It is well known that as prime minister Mr. Disraeli, before he became Lord Beaconsfield, was extremely chary of the honor that he conferred and that his keen powers of satire were never more happily exercised in private than at the expense of aspirants for titles by whom he was usually teased.

"That little brown box," he said, "gives me more trouble than all its red neighbors. It contains letters from marquises who want to be dukes; from earls who want to be marquises; from viscounts who want to be viscounts or earls, and from swarms of people, most of whom I have never heard of, who want to be made barons or lords. Behind most of them stand their wives or their wives' sisters, who, in their own language, 'will take no denial.' There will be many disappointments."

TITLES THEY ALL WANTED.

Disraeli's Little Brown Box of Letters Gave Him Lots of Trouble.

I chanced to meet Mr. Disraeli one afternoon in Whitehall, opposite the home office, and after shaking hands he invited me to come and have a chat with him in his private room at 10 Downing street. In his room red official boxes by the dozen were piled up on dumb-waiters and on the top was a small box of fawn-colored leather, to which he pointed. It is well known that as prime minister Mr. Disraeli, before he became Lord Beaconsfield, was extremely chary of the honor that he conferred and that his keen powers of satire were never more happily exercised in private than at the expense of aspirants for titles by whom he was usually teased.

A SCHEME FOR HUSBANDS.

How One Man Wriggles Through His Domestic Troubles

"I have a simple scheme for wriggling out of my trouble when my wife catches me in a fib," said a perfect brute last evening to several congenial companions. "On such occasions it is a great mistake for a man to attempt any explanation. The thing to do is merely to assume an air of injured innocence. That attitude will puzzle a woman and shake her confidence in your guilt. She will begin unconsciously to cast about for some explanation, some theory, some clue to the mystery, and when she finds one, no matter how preposterous, she will be so pleased by her own cleverness that it is easy to persuade her to accept it out of hand. You see, I have reduced the thing to a science. To illustrate: I told my wife not long ago that I would be detained over my books until past midnight. After I left, some neighbors, confounded men, invited her to the theater, and during the last act she saw me, of course, with some of the boys in the parquette. When I got home there was an explosion. I said nothing. I simply looked at her sadly, wistfully, reproachfully. Next day there was another explosion. I resumed my tactics. That evening she said: 'Look here, Charley, I want you to tell me whether you really went to the theater to see Col. Hawkins.' Then I remembered suddenly that Hawkins was seated at my left, and also that she knew I had been trying to close a large-sized business deal with him. In the goodness of her heart the dear girl had arrived at the conclusion that I must have gone to the show to clinch that contract. I smiled away. 'I would have thought, Mary,' I replied, with great gentleness, 'that something of the kind might have suggested itself to you before.' That was enough. She wept copiously. I was not a monster; I was a martyr. Eventually I forgave her upon her solemn promise never again to suspect me of an untruth. So you see how it is. If I had tried to explain I would doubtless have made a mess of it and planted lasting seeds of distrust. As it turned out, the episode redounded to my credit. It's a great thing to have brains, boys, when you're dealing with women."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

FE-RU-NA'S VICTORY.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAN STUBBINS—I feel like a woman since using your Fe-ru-na.

Your medicine has helped me more than I can tell. I can now work and never feel tired out. When I first began to use your medicine I couldn't sweep my own room, run the sewing machine or lift anything without an ache. I even hurt me to ride or walk any distance. Now I can do all this, and I believe more, and never feel the effects of it. I feel so proud of the way it has brought me out that I tell it far and near. I can heartily recommend your medicine to any woman suffering from female disease. I know from experience that your medicine will do just what you say it will. I thank you, Doctor, a thousand times for your treatment. I shall recommend your medicine wherever I go. I know what it has done for me and I know it will do the same for others. I feel that there are thousands of other women who would, after using your treatment, as I did, be thankful. I am so glad I got your treatment. This month is the first time in my life that I can remember of having my menses without pain. Why, I can't do anything but recommend Fe-ru-na.—Miss Emma L. Bolden, Wilberforce, O.

The Fe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail Dr. Hartman's special book for women. Free on application, to women only. All druggists sell Fe-ru-na.

GOEBEL USED NO LIQUOR.

The editor of the Ewing Enquirer has this to say to Senator Goebel: "We desire to make a statement in justice to the man who has been so bitterly opposed by a few ministers in this county. At the headquarters of Wm. Goebel at the Galt House in Louisville during the late disgraceful meeting of the Democrats of the State, there was not a bottle, case, keg or barrel of whiskey, wine, beer or brandy in his rooms, nor was there a drunken man in his delegation from Kenton county, while there was an innumerable quantity, what was termed by those who used it 'the best' in all the rest of the headquarters we visited. We do not say this to injure another, nor as a slur at the party, for the Republican conventions are as disgraceful, but we speak of it to remind those who should be moral teachers that they must not too hastily judge."

GETTING A PLACE.

A suggestion for Young Men Just Starting Out in Life.

Almost every man who has succeeded in establishing himself in the business or professional world, is constantly applied to that he may use his influence to secure a position for that or that person, where he may have a chance to earn a livelihood or secure a foothold that may result in earning a livelihood. Every right-minded man is glad to render this service to those who are worthy; and in rendering it he frequently does a great favor as the employer, for it is a substantial advantage to a business man to have trustworthy, intelligent and ambitious subordinates. But it is well to remind those who are in search of positions that their wisest course is to improve the first decent opportunity that offers to secure a foothold in the world of self-support. It does not make a very great difference where one starts. If the employee has the qualities that make him valuable the employer will discover it, or if he does not some other employer will. The most fatal obstacle to success is for the employee to render in service what he deems an exact equivalent for his wages, not to take an interest in his work and not to consult his employer's advantage. Such persons are of a positive type and they are the first to be discarded when economies are imperative. It is well to remember that the value of any position is not to be measured simply by the pay that goes with it, but by its opportunities for advancement, and by the chance that it may directly or indirectly bring the one who holds it into relation with larger and better things.—Boston Watchman.

To Read the Log.

A Swedish inventor has patented an addition to the log, by which its readings may be directly shown in the chartroom or conning tower. The instrument is connected by means of an electric cable to a contact mechanism giving a suitable number of contacts per mile to the part of the instrument that points out the distance on a dial graduated in miles. The instrument points out the miles exactly according to the taffrail log; it registers the miles per hour, and gives, if desired, a signal on an electric bell when a certain distance has been traveled.

The Goebel Bill.

People who denounce the Goebel election law are generally misled in their knowledge as to what the law really is. It simply constitutes a State B and of three, whose duties are purely ministerial, to take the place of the old board, which was composed of three Republicans—the Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State. The powers of the new board are not only whittled down by the old board, but three of different political parties perform the same functions for each county and have beside their pointment of election officers, who must be of different political parties—a result not assured under the old law.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

Two Democratic Candidates Already Announced.

The growing belief that the Democratic ticket is going to sweep the State this fall by an old-time majority is causing candidates for Representative to be plentiful in many counties heretofore carried by the Republicans. In this county there are already two candidates and both are thoroughly imbued with the idea that this is the time for Christian to go Democratic, something it has not done since 1890.

Lieut. Col. Joett Henry, late of the Third Kentucky Regiment, who returned from Cuba some weeks ago, to-day accepts a call upon him to become a candidate and promises to make an active and winning fight.

Mr. Jos. A. McCord, of Era, was also in town Saturday and announced his intention to run. He is a young farmer about 30 years of age, who is a cousin of Editor J. F. Rogers, the Republican nominee.

MILITARY COMPANY.

A Company of State Guards to be Organized.

Active steps are being taken looking to the organization of a new military company to take the place of the Latham Light Guards in the proposed Third Regiment. The first meeting was held last night and a good many young men have already enrolled themselves.

The muster roll will be submitted to Gov. Bradley for approval and when accepted the officers will be elected and the company mustered into the State service.

Most of the young men who were members of the former company will likely be in this one.

CITY FATHERS

Held a Busy Session Friday Night.

Two Bidders on Electric Lighting —Street Numbering Will Be Unchanged.

The city council met in regular session Friday night with all of the members present.

The City Judge's report showed $559 in fines imposed during the month.

The collections by the Chief of Police amounted to $138.50.

The City Treasurer reported $3,181.89 in collections and $4,013.35 in expenditures for the month.

Several tax payers were heard and allowed reductions on their assessments.

A petition asking the council to change the numbering system of the city in the interest of a party from Paducah was presented by Mr. Tibbs. The council by a vote of 5 to 2 decided to make no change, but endorsed as official the numbers in Meacham's Directory.

The principal matter coming up was the question of renewing the electric street lighting contract expiring in October. The street committee reported that only electric lights would be used and the present number of 40 increased to 60. The Hopkinsville Gas and Lighting Company appeared by attorney and asked for a franchise in order to become a bidder. The sale of a franchise was ordered and the Gas company will put in a bid and if successful will build a plant in time to begin service in October. The franchise application guarantees a maximum charge of $80 per light. The present Electric Light Company will of course also bid on the contract for another year.

The Board adjourned to meet again last night to consider the franchise asked for.
